Brooklyn Tin and Sheet-Iron Roofers Strike This Morning.

A big strike on many large buildings in Brooklyn is in progress to-day.

The members of the Tin and Sheet-Iron Roofers' Union, numbering about five hundred men, are on strike to enforce the eight-hour rule, which went into effect with other trades on May 1.

The bosses were given notice about month ago that on June 1 the men would expect a reduction of their hours of labor rom nine to eight, with a continuation of he usual pay, $3,50 per day.

The strike is against the men composing that is known among the trade as the "Big Four," which includes the firms of John Davis, of Court street; John Seton & o. . corner of Washington and Park avenues James White, corner of Duffield and Fulton streets, and William Martin, Washington and Tillary streets.

Among the principal buildings affected by the strike are the new Clarendon Hotel, St. John's College, St. Augustine's R. C. Church in Sixth avenue and Culver's new railroad depot on Third avenue.

in Sixth avenue and Culver's new railroad depot on Third avenue.

There are hundreds of houses all over the city which will be delayed by the strike. In the new wards there are a great many buildings going up which now only await the work of the roofers.

The strikers are cheerful and do not fear the outcome, claiming that they are prepared to stand a long fight.

The men hold meetings at 357 Fulton street. The Strike Committee consists of William Swift, Leonard James, John Low, John Gill, Jesse Conk and John Carroli.

It is said that several of the large contractors, realizing a big strike was imminent, cancelled a number of good contracts.

At the strikers' headquarters it was reported that several of the smaller shops had given in and that about thirty men had gone back to work.

"MATT" MORGAN DEAD.

"The Popular Artist Expires in His Lexington Avenue Home.

Lexington Avenue Home.

Matthew Morgan, the widely known artist, died suddenly at his home in 891 Lexington avenue at seven o'clock this morning. It is supposed that heart disease was the cause.

Mr. Morgan was nearly forty-six years old and had an eventful career as an artist.

Nearly fifteen years ago he established a comic weekly in London. He called it the Tomahawk and it immediately became very Tomahawk and it immediately became very popular.

Morgan published a series of daring cartoons in his paper and finally wound up with one he called "Brown's Study." It portrayed John Brown in the act of gazing longingly at England's throne.

Matters became so hot for Morgan that he came to this country, and he has been here ever since. He preferred to work for himself rather than attach himself to any regular illustrated publication, and in this way has done work for every monthly or weekly of note. weekly of note.
